

Why does someone seek a coach and not just a good friend or family member?

Friends and family can listen and sympathize, but they often don't respond with deep listening, goal setting, action planning and accountability. There are established techniques to coaching. Professional coaches complete rigorous certification programs to build those skills.